THE REPUBLICAN.

Established 1869. BELLEFONTE, PA., THURSDAY, OCTOBER 19, 1911. Vol. 41 No. 37

CONTEST'S BEST OFFER ANNOUNCED TODAY

A Ballot Good For 150,000 Extra Votes Will be Given For a Club of Ten Subscriptions.

150,000 EXTRA VOTES.

For each Club of ten subscriptions to The Republican turned in before 8.30 o'clock Wednesday evening, October 25, an extra voucher good for 150,000 votes will be issued in addition to the regular schedule. Both old and new subscriptions can be used in making up a club and candidates can secure as many clubs as they desire.

BY T. K. GREER.

By the offer that is announced today candidates can readily see that a large number of votes can be secured. This is an excellent offer and it differs from the one of last week inasmuch as a candidate will be compelled to secure ten subscriptions in order to get the extra votes. Many will get ten easily and will not stop at one club but will endeavor to get all they can. This is no time to falter and every opportunity to get votes must be grasped and grasped instantly.

This is absolutely the best offer to be made during the contest. The Republican pledges its word to the public that there will be no better offer of any kind.

THE BEST OFFER.

Think of it. 150,000 Bonus Votes over and above the regular number is offered to put enthusiasm into The Republican's Auto contest right from the start and will include all yearly subscriptions turned in during the coming seven days. This is absolutely the best bonus vote offer that will be given at any time during the contest and is done to show The Republican appreciates the activity of those who enter early and do their work from the start. On each subscription the regular number of votes will be issued and if you turn in ten yearly subscriptions to The Republican the next seven days, you will be given a bonus ballot good for 150,000 votes. Do not wait until you get ten but turn in subscriptions as you get them. A careful record is kept of all subscriptions and as soon as you get ten the extra ballot will be issued.

VOTES IN DEMAND

There is no question that votes are in demand in Centre County just now. While we are in the midst of a warm political campaign with many men seeking office, the campaigners in The Republican's automobile contest have the center of the stage and the battle of ballots goes merrily on with honors about even. There is sure to be some losers in both campaigns but the same rules applies in any contest. But did you ever notice that in the event of a losing candidate there has always been something learned after the campaign is over that had it been attended to before, victory would have resulted instead of defeat. Candidates should watch this. Everybody admires a winner and in the great circulation campaign it will be the consistent hustlers from now until the finish who will be the winners. Indeed at this stage of the game it would be as difficult to pick the auto winner as it would be to ascertain which bee stung you when you put your hand into a beehive. There is no doubt in the minds of any of the candidates that they must work and work hard to be winners. They dare not neglect one opportunity to get subscriptions.

PILE UP RESERVE.

This special vote offer is an attractive inducement for new entries in the contest.

If you have not yet entered your name you should send it at once on a post card or telephone the Contest Department and a representative will call and explain fully any details that are not clearly understood. It is not too late to get in the race and win.

This is the beginning of "Opportunity Time" and every candidate anxious to win should do their best before October 25, at 8.30 p. m. to secure a number of these bonus vote ballots.

Those who are a little behind in the race can easily acquire first place during this time if a little extra effort is made to get every available subscription. You will be surprised to see how rapidly your vote total will roll into the thousands.

"SHOW ME" STATE

Ever hear the expression "I'm from Missouri; you must show me." Sure you have many, many a time. There is a whole lot to that little quotation as a show down often indicates. Take for example a politician who loudly acclaims just before election "I will have an easy victory; it is all over but the shouting." You have heard that, and then when the votes are counted and his meeker opponent, who went around and worked quietly and secured votes that were votes, is declared the winner the loud shouting individual must take water or in the parlance of the political game must "eat crow." This same thing can be applied to the automobile contest which is being conducted by The Republican. When you hear of so-and-so having millions of votes take it with a grain of salt and instead of being bluffed or scared, dig in all the harder and make up your mind that you are not beaten until you are beaten and as to that no one can tell who's who until the final count of votes is made on the night of November 18.

There is no question that a person good enough bluffer to frighten others and thereby knock out competition is doing a good piece of work as it largely increases his or her chances of winning. But it is seldom that it succeeds as the majority of the people now days are "wise" and must be "shown." Instead of being bluffed out the candidates with any back bone whatever generally dig in all the harder and then if they are defeated they know they did their best.

Below will be found the standing of candidates up until yesterday morning at nine o'clock:

The Court House---Its Defamers.

Up to this moment in the campaign "The Republican" has studiously and intentionally refrained from any reference to the repairing of the Court House. Until the "Centre Democrat" and the "Democratic Watchman" appeared last week we believed that certain Democrats who were chiefly instrumental in and largely responsible for the Court House repairs would refuse to stoop to violate pledges, to prostitute manhood and to sacrifice self-respect by making the repairing of the Court House a partisan political issue. At last the mask is off. Sacred pledges have ruthlessly been broken, the Board of Commissioners have been outrageously betrayed and honor as between man and man has been cast to the winds. The splendid repairs to the Court House have been dragged into the political mire. What distinguished and illustrious men have publicly praised as a monument to the Board of Commissioners is now held up as a target and the acts of honest, progressive officials have been twisted and distorted and made to appear as the corrupt and inefficient works of dishonest and faithless public servants.

And for what? To what end have the Democratic campaign bosses stooped to such dishonor? For what have sacred pledges been broken, manhood sacrificed and honor so traduced? Simply for a few paltry votes with which to elect a group of Democratic candidates who are not the choice of the people but of a disgracefully brazen political machine.

Since the Court House is made a political issue, let it come. We stand squarely upon the statement that the remodeled Court House reflects credit upon the Board of Commissioners and upon Centre County. We proudly assert that the work of the Board of Commissioners was well and economically done and that it is an honor to the Republican party to have given to the public service men who were capable and courageous enough to achieve the most progressive step in Centre County affairs in the last quarter of a century. For the magnificent Court House as it stands today we have no apologies to offer. It is a work that speaks for itself and in silent eloquence rebukes the insincere critic, the chronic fault-finder and the ever-present demagogue.

Let us tell the facts as to the repairing of the Court House, for where the facts are known we have no fear as to the verdict of all fair-minded, honest men. Shortly after the election of the present Board of Commissioners they were invited to attend a meeting of members of the bar and others at the home of Judge Orvis. There the imperative need of repairing the Court House was thoroughly discussed. Emphasis was laid upon the fact many grand juries had recommended the repairs but that it had always been impossible to find a Board of Commissioners with the courage to do their duty. The pressing need of larger offices was gone over. The lack of proper protection for valuable public records was pointed out. The extremely dangerous sanitary condition of the building was openly condemned.

For the most part those at this meeting were Democrats. None was more insistent than Judge Orvis, a Democrat, in urging the Board of Commissioners to face the situation as courageous men and order the Court House repaired without delay. Voluntarily, and at that time no doubt in full sincerity, all present gave assurance that if the Court House would be repaired it would not be allowed to be made a political issue when the Board of Commissioners should come up for re-election. The Board of Commissioners, convinced of the unmistakable need for repairs to the Court House, frankly stated that they would meet the situation like men. Weak and less courageous officials would have shirked the duty, just as many previous Boards of Commissioners had shirked it. For it meant several years of additional work and inconvenience and annoyance that could just as easily have been avoided by declining to order the work done. Solicitous friends, foreseeing the likelihood of [illegible] pledges, foreseeing just what has come to pass, pleaded with Messrs. Woodring and Zimmerman to defer action, at least until after they had been re-elected to their second term and thus escape danger of treachery of professed friends. One of the present Democratic nominees for a County office personally warned Mr. Woodring that action should be deferred until after he and Mr. Zimmerman had been re-elected. Now, mark the reply of Mr. Woodring to this suggestion. With characteristic honesty and abiding faith in the people of Centre County, Mr. Woodring replied that he and Mr. Zimmerman would be deceiving the people and untrue to themselves if they should intentionally defer until their second term doing a duty which might not meet with popular approval and thus cause their defeat for re-election. And to this Mr. Woodring added that his re-election was of secondary importance, that he was most concerned in doing his duty, in proving himself an honest, faithful official during his first term.

On this basis and in response to a long-crying need, the Board of Commissioners ordered the Court House to be repaired. The contract for the work was awarded in competitive bidding. The work was well and economically done. Not a dollar, not a penny, was dishonestly spent. The completed building is a work of which any group of men, or any party, may justly be proud. It will stand as a stinging rebuke to the critics and defamers of the Board of Commissioners long after the former are gone and happily forgotten. It will ever stand as a monument to the worth of honest, courageous, faithful and efficient public officials. It will stand for all time as a shining testimonial to the wisdom of honestly and economically spending the people's money to repair and safeguard and preserve the people's property, just as it is the part of wisdom for an individual to honestly and economically spend his money to repair and safeguard and preserve his private property. We submit to the intelligence of the people that a public official who deliberately refuses to repair the people's property aud thereby allows it to suffer through his neglect is not only cowardly and faithless but he is a menace to society and a discredit to his name.

JOHN CRISSMAN DEAD

Brother of Bellefonte Citizen Passed Away Suddenly at Lockport.

John A. Crissman, a brother of W. Homer Crissman, of Bellefonte, died rather suddenly on Monday afternoon, last, at his late home at Lockport. Deceased was aged about 70 years and up to a short time prior to his death he had been in the best of health. His death was hastened by a complication of asthma, liver and kidney troubles.

Mr. Crissman was an expert bookkeeper and in his early life was in the employ of lumber and coal companies. He was a veteran of the Civil war and was held in high regard by a wide circle of admiring friends. Surviving are the following brothers and sisters: W. Homer Crissman, of Bellefonte; Mrs. Mollie Fravel, of Snow Shoe; Harry Crissman, of Pittsburg, and Judson Crissman, of DuBois.

Funeral services were held today, interment being made at Dunnstown.

The flag-raising exercises at the New High School Building last week were especially interesting. The speakers were Professor Jonas E. Wagner, D. F. Fortney and William C. Heinle.

The Cost of One Court House---And Some Others.

Figures taken from the official records in a number of counties where Court Houses have been rebuilt or repaired in recent years show that the cost of repairing the Centre County Court House was much less than that of any other County. Comparison of the figures showing what it cost each county in question makes the splendid work of the Republican Board of Commissioners in Centre County stand out as a rebuke to those who for political purposes are now criticising Messrs. Woodring and Zimmerman. Here are the official figures. Read them carefully, study them and then ask yourself whether Messrs. Woodring and Zimmerman should be criticised or commended:

Luzerne County Court House rebuilt in 1909 - $2,000,000.00

Westmoreland Co. Court House rebuilt in 1907 - $1,500,000.00

Blair County Court House repaired in 1905-6 - $233,000.00

Centre County Court House repairs - - - - $122,000.00

Including new central heating plant to supply heat for both the Court House and the County Jail.

In other words it cost Centre County $111,000 less than it cost Blair County to repair its Court House; $1,378,000 less it cost Westmoreland County, and $1,878,000 less than it cost Luzerne County.

CANDIDATES TELL OF COST OF NOMINATIONS

File Their Campaign Expense Accounts as Required by Law.

FEW ONLY UNDER $50

Majority of Aspirants at Recent Primaries Averaged from $100 to $200—Heavy Expenses Due to Long and Active Campaign.

It costs money to be a hustling candidate for nomination for a county office, according to the expense accounts filed on Saturday last by the several candidates in Centre County. A number of candidates, Republican and Democratic, swore that they spent less than $50. For such the law provides that an itemized expense account need not be filed. Others are required to put it down in black and white, telling the total amount expended and how it was used. Some of the expense accounts are rather shy on detailed information, while on the other hand some give figures showing what everything cost, including a pan of oats for the horse while driving through the remote sections in quest of votes.

Expenditures in excess of $50 by Republican candidates, as set forth in their expense accounts filed with the Prothonotary, follow:

J. S. Dale, County Treasurer	$64.07
R. T. Comly, County Treasurer	508.00
G. H. Yarnell, Sheriff,	208.00
H. C. Rothrock, Prothonotary,	137.97
Josiah Pritchard, County Treasurer,	229.00
D. O. Downing, Sheriff,	146.25
H. E. Zimmerman, Commissioner,	84.67
Frank Sasserman, Register	74.40
E. J. Williams, Register,	97.00
Harry H. Dichl, Prothonotary,	77.44
G. W. Hall, Register,	65.93

Republican candidates who swore that their campaign expenses were not in excess of $50 were James C. Furst, for District Attorney; William H. Brown, for Recorder; Jacob Woodring, for County Commissioner; W. H. Goss and Clement H. Gramley, for County Auditors, and Robert D. Musser, for County Treasurer. Joseph L. Montgomery, Treasurer of the Republican County Committee, also filed a statement that he had expended less than $50.

Almost without exception the campaign expenses of the several Democratic candidates for county offices reached the three-figure mark. Some of them were as follows:

John D. Miller, County Treasurer,	$118.00
D. R. Foreman, Prothonotary,	122.20
C. U. Hoffer, Prothonotary,	$265.00
Frank W. Grebe, Treasurer,	203.20
W. H. Noll, Commissioner,	112.60
D. A. Grove, Commissioner,	59.67
W. A. Stover, Commissioner,	115.66
James Schofield, Treasurer,	106.25
A. B. Lee, Sheriff,	150.00
D. J. Gingery, Sheriff,	300.00
E. C. McKinley, Recorder,	103.20
J. Frank Smith, Register,	123.75
D. Paul Fortney, District Atty.,	190.07
J. K. Johnston, District Attorney,	154.48
S. Kline Woodring, District Atty,	181.16
J. M. Keichline, District Attorney,	115.00

Democratic candidates who filed sworn statements that their expenses were not in excess of $50 were the following: W. Francis Speer, for Recorder; Siney H. Hoy and Jeremiah Brungart, for County Auditors; J. L. Dunlap and Burdine Butler, for County Commissioners; John Hipple, for Sheriff, and J. H. Wetzel, for County Surveyor.

Rev. William Clement Isett, of West Grove, Pa., who recently preached a trial sermon in the Bellefonte Presbyterian church, last week accepted a call to the First Presbyterian church, at Millville, N. J. His salary will be $1500.

PRISON COMMISSIONERS INSPECT LOCAL SITES

Belief Growing That New Penitentiary Will Come Here.

MEANS TROLLEY LINE

Promoter of Project to Build Street Railway From Bellefonte to State College Submits Plans to Penitentiary Commission.

While no recommendation of a site has been made, the belief is steadily gaining ground that the proposed new penitentiary and farm prison will be located in Centre County and with the chances strongly favoring the McBride's gap location, nearby Bellefonte. Warden John Francies, of the western penitentiary, arrived in Bellefonte on Tuesday night with William E. Sankey, William Price, Thomas A. Dunn and C. E. McPherson, of the penitentiary commission and with them devoted a part of yesterday to thoroughly inspecting the McBride's gap site. The inspection will be resumed today, Warden Francies and members of the commission planning to remain until tonight. Today's inspection will be devoted to Penns Valley.

In conjunction with the strong probability that the new penitentiary will be located at McBride's gap was the revival of the old project to build a street railway line from Bellefonte to State College. W. C. Hagan, of Pittsburg, one of the promoters of the project, was in Bellefonte and on Tuesday night submitted his plans to Warden Francies and the several members of the penitentiary commission. That the street railway line will be built if it is decided to locate the new penitentiary near Pleasant Gap is regarded as reasonably certain.

The commission now in Bellefonte will eventually submit its recommendation of a site for the penitentiary to Governor Tener. It will be up to the latter to approve or reject it. On the occasion of his recent visit to Bellefonte Governor Tener explained to "The Republican" that it was his desire to be informed in regard to the several sites under consideration so that he might act promptly once the commission submitted its recommendation.

Each of the several sites in Centre County already inspected by Warden Francies will be visited by the commission before the members depart tonight. Which site meets with approval will not be revealed until the formal recommendation is filed with Governor Tener.

BOY'S TRAGIC DEATH

Beech Creek Lad Dragged to Death by Runaway Team Hitched to Harrow.

Ten-years-old Fred Potter, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Potter, of near Beech Creek, met with a tragic death at work on his father's farm on Friday of last week. The little fellow was driving a two-horse team hitched to a harrow. The horses became frightened and ran away. The lines happened to be about the boy's neck and he was dragged across the field. His neck was broken and when found the body was still warm but life was extinct. A brother, Leonard, was cutting buckwheat in an adjoining field at the time. He made the discovery of the accident and the tragic death of his brother.

There were no witnesses to the sad accident. It is supposed that in making a turn at one end of the field the horses became frightened or got tangled up in the harness. The boy had the lines thrown over his head while he guided the harrow with his hands. It is not improbable that the first lunge by the horses broke his neck. The sympathy of the entire community is with the parents of the unfortunate child. Funeral services were held on Monday, conducted by Rev. W. H. Patterson, of Blanchard. The schoolmates of the child attended in a body. Surviving the deceased child are the parents and the following brothers and sisters: Leonard, Flora, Rosa, Forest and Ida.

Varieties of Apples.

The State Zoologist, Prof. H. A. Surface, was asked by a correspondent to name a list of best varieties of apples for a person planting 100 trees. The following letter by the Professor may be a help to others who are contemplating planting an orchard of this size:

"For one hundred apple trees for commercial purposes I would plant twenty-five Stayman Winesap, twenty-five York Imperial, fifteen Rome Beauty, fifteen Mammoth Black Twig or Paragon, ten Summer Rambo and ten Smokehouse. If there is room for a few more I would add from ten to twenty Jonathan. If you wish to cut down the list to reduce it, for your region, I would recommend Stayman Winesap, York Imperial and for a third variety make your own personal choice between Rome Beauty, Jonathan, Paragon and Smokehouse. The list which I have named has the special value of ripening at different dates.

You can commence with your Summer Rambo, and these will be followed by Smokehouse, which in turn will be followed by Grimes Golden, Jonathan, Rome Beauty, Paragon and Stayman Winesap in order, until you come to York Imperial, which can be picked last. While the York is not regarded as of high quality, it is one of the very best commercial apples for that region. It is a strong grower, and is a good bearer, and the fruit has good color and size, and sells well.

I would advise you to go slow on summer apples, but if you wish to plant some apples to ripen before the Summer Rambo I would recommend Yellow Transparent, Red Astrachan, Cornell's Fancy and Maiden Blush. If you are planting for local market, where you expect to sell them yourself, you can afford to prolong the ripening season by planting a number of varieties that will give a succession in date of ripening. If yours is to be a shipping market, the fewer varieties you plant, and the more you condense your picking period, so as to ship quite a quantity at once, the better it may prove to be for you.

I would not plant the trees this fall in ground that is seeded in wheat, unless I could keep the tree row cultivated, beginning next spring, and cultivating the tree row itself with a one-horse cultivator, letting the wheat grow between the rows. Above all else, you should avoid planting in wheat field or grain or sod field, and letting the young trees remain uncultivated. If you wish to get the field in clover before planting, go ahead, and grow your wheat, and take it off next summer, and you will have a clover field after you sow your clover seed in the spring and it starts rightly, and then you can plow this under before planting next fall, or what would probably be better would be to let your clover sod remain over winter, and plow it under early in the spring. There is no greater advantage in fall planting, where you are planting only a few trees and will have plenty of time to get them properly planted fairly early in the spring.

About the only advantage of fall planting is that you get the planting out of the way. The disadvantage in your case would be that you have your clover sod, and have your ground exposed to washing during the winter. If you can get some cover crop on it like rye, that will hold the moisture and grow further fertility, this can be done in the fall, and will be a good plan."

What D. F. Fortney, a Democrat, Said:

D. F. Fortney, a Democrat, was one of the speakers at the re-dedication of the Court House on May 19, and in his address he gave the following unqualified indorsement to Commissioners Woodring, Zimmerman and Dunlap:

"Before taking up the subject assigned to me, as a citizen and as a member of the bar, it is just due to those by whose authority the remodeling and enlarging of the Court House was done to say, their work has been well done, and not before it was necessary. I became a member of the bar of this county on the 30th day of April, 1869, and during all the years that have intervened the enlarging and remodeling of the Court House has been discussed and considered by the Court and recommended by various Grand Juries, and enough of county funds expended, during this period, on repairs, which added neither to the beauty nor convenience of the Court House, to have built an entire new one. The judgment of the Commissioners under which the remodeling was done, the fine skill of the architects who planned the changes, and the men who did the work are all to be commended in the highest possible terms for giving to Centre County the neatest, most convenient, and durable Court House there is in the State, and at the same time preserve to the people all the associations and memories that nearly a century of use has clustered around the building."

Judge Orvis Indorsed The Commissioners.

At the re-dedication of the Court House, on May 19, last, Judge Orvis, who presided and made one of the chief addresses, voluntarily indorsed the work of County Commissioners Woodring, Zimmerman and Dunlap in the following language:

"It is thus apparent, when urgent circumstances demanded the enlargement of this building, that these additions and alterations should be in harmony with its dignified Greek portico and be as dignified as its history and as noble as its uses and purposes. We cannot, therefore, too much commend the wisdom displayed by the present Board of County Commissioners in doing their work so economically and so well, avoiding patchwork and, cheap economies, and thereby bringing this building to a condition that it will serve all the purposes of Centre County for generations to come. In saying this I am aware that there has been adverse criticism and there are rumors that there is considerable objection to their work in some of the remoter sections of the county. All these criticisms and objections are solely due to ignorance and misconception, and must yield to a personal inspection of the Court House and to an understanding of the urgent needs of the people even for its present facilities. If there be at present any divided opinion upon this work of the Board of Commissioners I unhesitatingly predict that the future will have no divided judgment and that these Commissioners have erected for themselves to their credit and to the pride of there descendents for all future time this building as their monument."

"Secured Through Progressive Citizenship."

On September, 15, 1910, the "Centre Democrat" which is now trying to defeat and destroy Commissioners Woodring and Zimmerman, publicly commended their work in repairing the Court House. The "Centre Democrat" now denounces the Board of Commissioners for the sole purpose of trying to elect Noll and Grove. Just keep that fact in mind while you read the following taken from the columns of the same "Centre Democrat" of September 15, 1910:

"The Court House is now ready for occupancy. On Wednesday morning Harry Clevenstine put the last tack in the carpet in the main room. This is green in shade and is laid inside the bar, making a very pretty appearance. The floor, under the seats, is covered with heavy gum matting, which deadens the sound when anybody walks over it or shuffles their feet. It will do much to lessen the noise in the court room, which has been one of the great difficulties heretofore. The room will be brilliantly lighted with pretty chandeliers from the ceiling. They are made so that in case of an emergency gas could be used instead of electricity. It is said this is one of the finest rooms of the kind in the State. The large mahogony doors have been hung at the entrance of the court of justice, which also give it an imposing appearance. The floor in the historical library is now being laid, and when this is completed the remodeled Court Honse will be about ready to turn over to the commissioners, except the painting on the outside which will be postponed until cool weather kills the flies. Centre county can now boast of having something that is up-to-date and in accordance with the fame Centre county has secured through her progressive citizenship."

Recipes.

Maple Fudge—Two cups granulated sugar, one cup maple syrup, one square of chocolate, two tablespoonfuls sweet cream, butter size of a walnut, one-half teaspoonful vanilla. Boil until a little dropped into cold water forms a soft ball. When almost cool beat briskly till creamy and pour on to buttered tins.

Grandma's Cookies—One cup sugar, either white or brown, a good half cup of shortening, three-quarters of a cup of sour milk or buttermilk, one teaspoon soda, half a nutmeg, one egg, pinch of salt, caraway seed if liked, flour to make a stiff dough; after stirring thoroughly, turn out on the board and knead five minutes or more; roll out half an inch thick; cut any shape desired.

Baked Stuffed Apples—These are delicious and very nutritious for breakfast or luncheon. Wash six large apples and with a paring knife scoop out part of the meat, chopping up fine and mixing with chopped walnuts or pecans, figs and dates. Sprinkle with a little sugar and cinnamon, and after stuffing with mixture place a nut or date on top of each and bake for half an hour in a pan with a little water. Serve with cream.

Veal Mousse—Chop three-fourths of a cup of cold cooked veal and one pound in a mortar. Add gradually while continuing the pounding one-half cupful of heavy cream and force the mixture through a pure strainer. Add one-half teaspoonful of granulated gelatin dissolved in three tablespoonfuls of hot stock, and add another one-half cupful of the cream. Season with salt, cayenne and evaporated horseradish. Fill individual molds one-third full of lemon jelly and when firm fill molds with the veal mixture. Chill thoroughly, remove rom molds, and serve on lettuce leaves.

Macaroons—Whip the whites of two eggs to a froth, add pinch of salt and the amount of cream of tartar which can be placed on a dime. Continue beating with wire whip until it is stiff, dry froth. Add gradually, beating all the time a generous half cup of granulated sugar, then add two heaping tablespoons of cocoanut and a few drops of almond extract. Drop in teaspoonfuls on greased paper laid over bottom of inverted dripping pan about an inch and a half apart. Bake in very slow oven, just letting them raise and dry out at first increasing heat little, at last to brown slightly. When feel firm and hard to light pressure of finger are done.

Ginger Cakes—One quart of New Orleans molasses, pint of lard or butter, pint of buttermilk, two tablespoonfuls of soda, two tablespoonfuls of ginger, flour enough to make a stiff batter; pour the milk and molasses boiling hot in a large tin bread pan in which has been placed the ginger and soda (the pan must be large enough to prevent running over); stir in all the flour possible after which stir in the lard or butter, when cold, mold with flour (stir in all flour possible) and cut in cakes. Care must be taken to follow these directions implicitly or the cakes will not be good. Remember to add the lard and butter last, and buttermilk, not sour milk, must be used. Boil the molasses in a skillet, and after pouring it into the pan put the buttermilk in the same skillet boil and pour over the molasses, ginger, and soda.

A Great Advantage to Working Men.

J. A. Maple, 125, 7th St., Steubenville, O., says: For years I suffered from weak kidneys and a severe bladder trouble. I learned of Foley Kidney Pills and their wonderful cures so I began taking them and sure enough I had as good results as any I heard about. My backache left me and to one of my business, expressman, that alone is a great advantage. My kidneys acted free and normal, and that saved me a lot of misery. It is now a pleasure to work where it used to be a misery. Foley Kidney Pills have cured me and have my highest praise." Sold by C. M. Parrish.

Fruit Juice Beautifies Complexion.

Fruit juice for the skin is the latest development in the beauty search. Any fruit will do, providing it is fresh and free from decay. A little vegetable juice, by way of change, is by no means scorned in the general effort to achieve charm and feature.

Granted that one is willing to adopt this plan of procedure, the first question to arise is "What kind of fruit?" The best solution is offered by a visit to the cupboard, where the left-overs of the day's fruit and vegetable store are found. If there is a stray tomato available utilize it, and the next day substitute some sliced cucumber, orange or grape fruit. Even an application of homely raw potato does not go unrewarded.

At bedtime the face, neck, arms and hands are bathed in tepid water in which has been dissolved a small quantity of ordinary baking soda. Rinse the skin thoroughly with cold water, then dry in soft towels. Next apply the fruit or vegetable juice, rubbing it carefully into the skin. Allow it to remain on over night, and in the morning bathe with cold water to which has been added a small quantity of borax to soften it. Do not use soap.

Foey's Kidney Remedy (Liquid.)

Is a great medicine of proven value for both acute and chronic kidney and bladder ailments. It is especially recommended to elderly people for its wonderful tonic and reconstructive qualities, and the permanent relief and comfort it gives them. Sold by C. M. Parrish.

Private Coleridge.

In his young days the poet Coleridge had a little love affair which ended in disaster, for the lady refused him. In despair he enlisted in a cavalry regiment which he hoped would be ordered on foreign service. For family reasons he dropped his correct name, but from a feeling of sentiment retained the initials, so Samuel Taylor Coleridge became Private Silas Tompkins Camberbatch. The regiment did not leave the country, and it was not long before his soul wearied of barrack life and its utter absence of romance. His military life ended in a curious fashion. One day while Coleridge was doing a weary sentry go two officers strolled past. One of them made use of a Greek quotation which the other corrected. The first insisted on his correctness, while the other was just as positive he was wrong. While they disputed the sentry suddenly presented arms and respectfully informed them that they were both in error. He gave the exact quotation, name of the author and other circumstances. This incident led to an inquiry, and the poet was restored to the bosom of his family.—London Graphic.

In a Japanese Temple.

"Asakuse temple is dedicated to the goddess Kwannon, a tiny image of gold, about two and one-half inches high," writes a traveler in Japan. "At the entrance to the temple grounds on either side of the immense gate stand two large and fearful looking figures, guarding the sacred precincts. Hanging outside the wire grating are a number of sandals for their use if they wish to take a walk, and rice is sprinkled about. Each worshiper, before entering the temple, calls at a small building, and after contributing a small amount, washes his hands and rinses his mouth. In front of the main shrine is a large aperture in the floor, covered with latticework, into which the worshiper casts his gift. After clapping his hands to awaken or attract the attention of the god, he kneels, but his prayer is only brief. While there is one chief shrine there are many others under the same roof. One shrine especially attracted my attention; it was made of wood, and quite disfigured and worn through the constant rubbing of hands on the spot corresponding to the afflicted portions of the sufferers' bodies."—Chicago News.

Tower of Hercules.

Travelers may still see on the coast of the English channel at Dover the ruins of a Roman lighthouse that was built at the time of the Roman conquest of Britain. Another ancient lighthouse, built less than a century after the tower at Dover, is still serving its original purpose. It was partly rebuilt and some alterations were made in it, but in the main it is the same old structure that guided the Roman galleys as they skirted the coasts of the bay of Biscay, making their way to the Roman port of Brigantium. This is the modern harbor of La Coruna, and the lighthouse is the most ancient thing about it. The Romans called it the tower of Hercules, and the moderns have perpetuated the name. The exact date of its erection is not known, but inscriptions and other evidence show that it was built in the time of Trajan, between 98 and 117 A. D.—Exchange.

Force of Habit.

"It's curious how habits fasten themselves on people. You know Wappsley?'

"Yes."

"He's an enthusiastic fisherman and always has a story to tell about some gigantic monster of the deep that he almost caught."

"I've heard him tell a lot of lies of that kind."

"Well, it seems that burglars broke into his house the other night and he got up and captured one of them—a little fellow—but you ought to hear him tell about the size of the one that got away."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Dana's Ten Books.

Charles A. Dana once made a list of ten "indispensable books." They are the Bible, Shakespeare, the Declaration of Independence, the Constitution of the United States, Bancroft's "History of the United States," Irving's "Life of Washington," Franklin's "Autobiography," Channing's "Essay on Napoleon Bonaparte," Gibbon's "Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire" and Tarbell's "Early Life of Lincoln."

Repudiated the Spelling.

Once while in Pittsburg Andrew Carnegie had a telegram sent and stood waiting until it reached the operator. He listened attentively to the clicking of the key, then immediately wrote a new telegram, as follows: "The other message mine; spelling the operator's."

Her Secret.

Bessie—Did you tell the girls at the tea that great secret I confided to you and Elsie? Eva—No; isn't it a shame? That horrid Elsie got there first and told them before I arrived!

Not the Cook's Fault.

Mistress—Really, Marie, whenever I come into the kitchen I see you doing nothing. Cook—You're right, mum; you never have any luck, do you?—Fliegende Blatter.

Setting Him Right.

He—My income is small, and perhaps it is cruel of me to take you from your father's roof. She—I don't live on the roof.

It's finer being a small hunk of sunshine than a big bank of fog.—Henry F. Cope.

His Great Generosity.

"We are getting up a subscription," began the lady who was carrying around the paper. Her voice trembled as she spoke, for the person she was now bracing happened to be the richest fellow in the community. She hoped against hope that she would get something fat from him.

"You are getting up a subscription?" echoed the millionaire, with a sweet smile. "I'm sure you'll be very successful. And what can I do?"

"Would you—could you"—she nearly fainted at her assurance—"would you p-p-put your name down on this paper for a h-h-hundred dollars?"

There—it was done. He wouldn't have missed a thousand, but she was pretty courageous to ask for as much as she did. His gentle smile reassured her.

"Will I put my name down for a hundred dollars?" said he. "Why, my dear young lady, I don't charge that amount for the use of my name when charity is the cause. I will put my name down, of course, but not for a hundred dollars. I won't charge you a cent for it. It is a slight service."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The Female Housefly.

A female house fly which has hibernated in a dwelling house, or elsewhere, may produce in the spring, at the lowest estimate, 120 eggs. Assuming that one-half of these hatch as females, and allowing that the breeding goes on without check for four months, we have as the descendants of a single hibernating individual 214,557,844,320,000,000,000,000 flies. Now, a house fly measures exactly one-fourth of an inch in length; the distance around the earth at the equator is said to be 24,800 miles. It would take, therefore, 3,688,312,000 flies placed end to end to go around the world once. Using this number as a denominator, and the number of flies produced in four months from one mother as a numerator, we find she will give rise, in the course of a summer, to enough flies to encircle the globe at the equator 5,000 times and have plenty of progeny to spare.—Professor F. L. Washburn in Popular Science Monthly.

Severe.

A story is going the rounds at a certain university regarding one of the sarcastic professors, who was recently conducting an oral examination in a very scientific study.

There was one student, handsome, easy and self possessed, who appeared to be utterly ignorant of the simplest phases of the subject.

Professor W. put question after question to him without receiving one intelligent reply. Finally the student said naively:

"I'm very unfortunate, professor; you never ask me anything I know."

The professor said nothing, but gravely tore off a tiny piece of paper from a convenient pad.

"Here, Mr. B.," he said, handing it to the student, "write all you know. Take plenty of time—there's no hurry."

What Rhymes With Babe?

A common English word for which there is only one rhyme is "babe," and it was Swinburne who used it with exquisite appropriateness in "A Rhyme:"

Babe, if rhyme be none
For that sweet small word
Babe, the sweetest one
Ever heard.

Right it is and meet
Rhyme should keep not true
Time with such a sweet
Thing as you.

Love alone, with yearning
Heart for astrolabe,
Takes the sun's height, burning
O'er the babe.

"Silence" is another word beloved of poets that has no rhyme. Mrs. Browning went to the very limits of her passion for assonance when she rhymed it with "islands!"

Oddities About Alphabets.

When the Portuguese first explored Brazil they made great fun of the natives of that country because they had in their alphabet no f, r or l—a people, the invaders declared, without fe ley or rey—without faith, law or king. The Mohawks, again, have no labials and vowed it was absurd when the missionaries tried to teach them to pronounce p and b, "for who," said they, "can speak with his mouth shut?"—Blackwood's Magazine.

Something Was.

Rivers was smoking a cheap cigar.

"Seems to me," said Brooks, "I smell something like cloth burning."

But Rivers was game.

He touched the lighted end of his cigar to his shirt sleeve.

"No wonder," he said, exhibiting the burned spot.—Chicago Tribune.

The Trouble.

Gramercy—We can't afford to give a dinner in the house. Besides, we haven't the things. Mrs. Gramercy—Pshaw! We can borrow the silver. Gramercy—Yes, and have the guests carry most of it away as souvenirs.—Judge.

A Second Washing.

"I've just washed out a suit for my little boy, and now it seems too tight for him."

"He'll fit it all right if you'll wash the boy."—Meggendorfer Blatter.

Changed the Geography.

"This goulash was spoiled in cooking, sir. Shall I cross it off the bill?"

"No, you chump! Put it down as goulash a la Russe under the head of special dishes."—Jugend.

The grand essentials to happiness in this life are something to do, something to love and something to hope for.

Made Him Doubt His Own Name.

It was the quality of sympathy that made Mrs. Cleveland's life in the White House so rich a memory, writes Dr. W. H. Crook in the Philadelphia Saturday Evening Post. I never knew her to make a mistake of a social nature but once, and then it was shared by so many others that I may be pardoned for repeating it in public print. I know the little story is true, for I was present at the time and heard it all. At one of the president's formal receptions a man named Decker appeared, and as he drew near the receiving line he told Colonel Wilson in confidence that his name was such an easy one it could not be mistaken or mispronounced, whereupon Colonel Wilson presented him.

"Happy to meet you, Mr. Cracker," said the president.

"Happy to meet you, Mr. Baker," said Mrs. Cleveland.

"Mr. Sacker," murmured Miss Bayard doubtfully.

"Happy to meet you, Mr. Black," Mrs. Whitney remarked with confidence.

It is said that a few minutes later Mr. Decker was seen looking at one of his visiting cards to see what his name really was.

Friction Matches.

Friction matches are a comparatively modern invention. They were first made by John Walker in England in 1827, but were rather crude affairs. He improved them somewhat in 1833 by using phosphorus. The first really practical friction match was made in the United States in 1836 by L. C. Allen of Springfield, Mass. Before this time a clumsy form of match was imported from France, which had to be dipped into a bottle of sulphuric acid before it could be lighted. This took a great deal of time and trouble, and Allen, seeing the necessity for friction matches, set about to make them and succeeded. He neglected to patent them, however, and on finally applying for letters patent found that a man named Alonzo Phillips, who was a peddler, had discovered through a third person the secret of making the matches and had already obtained a patent. Thus Allen, though the real inventor, was forced to become a mere manufacturer under another man's patent.—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

The Kidnaped Brides.

In the year 902, according to old custom, all the brides for the year at Venice assembled on St. Mary's eve at the cathedral, taking with them their dowries in small chests. There they awaited their bridegrooms, who followed them, and after mass they were married and received the bishop's blessing. In this year the sea rovers of Triest burst in upon the expectant maidens, who were all dressed in white, with hair loosely flowing and interwoven with threads of gold, carried them off to their barks and hoisted sail. The doge of Venice summoned his men to arms, pursued the rovers, overtook them in a creek still known as the Port of the Damsels and brought the brides back in triumph. In memory of this event a solemn procession of twelve young women took place yearly, and the Marian games were observed with great splendor until the year 1379, when they were discontinued in a time of disastrous war.

How They Fight Fire In Turkey.

This is the method of fighting fire in Turkey. In the center of Constantinople a high watchtower has been erected. When the man in the tower sees a blaze the alarm is sounded and the firemen are called to their posts. If they have horses they proceed very leisurely to hitch them to the engines or carts and trot to the fire, but in most cases they have no horses, and the men drag the engines through the streets at a walk. They do not hurry to attach the hose to the hydrant. The captain first finds the owner of the building that is in danger of destruction and finds out how much he will pay to have the fire put out. If the blaze is beyond control the captain approaches the owners of surrounding property and bargains with them for their protection, and of course they pay him liberally.—New York Post.

Ouida Out of Sorts.

Ouida in a decidedly pessimistic mood appears in Lady Dorothy Nevill's reminiscences. In 1887 Ouida sent to Lady Dorothy a card bearing the following "jubilee epitaph:"

Full half a century of measures small,
Weak wits, weak words, weak wars, and that is all.

It is amazing that Ouida could even for a moment have lapsed into such dull snappishness. Lady Dorothy's ascription of the foolish couplet to "feelings of depression" is doubtless just.—New York Tribune.

Defining the Difference.

"Madam," said one French gentleman introducing another, "this is the Marquis de Blank, and I assure you he is not such a fool as he looks."

"Madam," quietly remarked the marquis, with a bow, "my friend has just stated the exact difference between himself and me."

Blighted Affections.

Now the ashes of my heart are entombed in my breast, as in a sepulcher of ice, yet once that heart was formed of fire and burned and raged until it perished, self consumed.—From "The Parricide."

Mean.

First Fair One—How dreadful it is to have a skeleton in the family! Second Fair One—I know, dear. Have you ever tried exercise?

Avoid popularity; it has many snares and no real benefit.—Penn.

Men Who Cry on the Street.

"I was standing on the street corner waiting for a car," said a caller at the Deaconess home in Chicago, "and I saw a man walking along with bowed head, crying! No, he had not been drinking. He looked like a respectable workingman of middle age. I wanted to speak to him, but—I didn't. What do you suppose was the matter?"

The deaconess whom he was addressing said nothing, but she knew why some "respectable middle aged men" walk the city streets crying. Visions rose before her: A man who had just visited his boy, in jail for stealing—a man who has been hunting work for three weeks and "lost out" every time, till the dearly loved wife and baby at home were literally starving—a man who had just had a flashlight of his own degradation and was comparing it with the innocence of the clean hearted lad that used to cuddle into his mother's lap. The men go weeping along the streets sometimes, but oftener far they go too dead at heart to weep.—Christian Herald.

The Death Pain.

A reporter asked a well known surgeon whether his experience as a medical man had led him to believe that death is painless.

"Speaking generally," he said, "the death agony is very rarely attended by pain, because the system is always prepared for death by a weakening of the vital forces, by the circulation of impure blood through the brain and by the obtunding of the nerves. Of course some people have more pain than others, and this is very largely determined by temperament. A nervous man—all other things being equal—suffers more pain than a man who has enjoyed robust health, because the nervous man's sensibilities are stronger, but the pain of death is more in the anticipation of it than in the reality. Men of education face death with greater fortitude than men who are not educated. Women are almost always pluckier than men. They endure pain much better."—London Globe.

The Biter Bitten.

A Philadelphia man went to a dealer to purchase a dozen homing pigeons and was both surprised and delighted at the extremely low price asked for the birds. The bargain was finally concluded and the pigeons delivered. Two weeks later the gentleman happened to be passing, when the dealer stopped him and asked him how the birds were getting on.

"I don't know," replied the gentleman. "I have not heard from my friend."

"Your friend?"

"Yes; I bought them for a man in San Francisco."

The dealer's jaw fell in dismay, and then, with a rueful laugh, he admitted that he had sold the birds so cheaply because he knew that on being released they would immediately return to their old home. But from San Francisco! It was a clear case of the biter being bitten.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Life of a Gown.

"A lawsuit in which women's clothes are the center of litigation teaches even a woman many things she never before suspected about the clothes she wears," said a well dressed woman. "Last week I was present at a trial in which a woman was attempting to secure full insurance for gowns damaged by fire. In the expert testimony it was asserted no dress has a money value in law after it has been worn ten times. According to that theory, every gown owned by the plaintiff had outlived its usefulness before the fire came along to complete its destruction, and with the exception of a trifling sum representing the actual worth of old material the insurance company was absolved from its obligations."—New York Sun.

One View of Mountain Climbers.

Mountain climbing, now a popular part of an outing at home and abroad, was regarded in a far different light in its earlier days. "Murray's Guide to Switzerland," published in 1838, in the section devoted to Mont Blanc, soberly related that "it is a somewhat remarkable fact that a large proportion of those who have made this ascent have been of unsound mind." This quotation will console many timid souls.—Argonaut.

Chinese Business Houses.

Most of the Chinese business houses are owned by partnerships, and most partnerships are of a large number of persons. The Chinese who has saved $100 local currency will at once invest it in a mercantile business and become a partner.

Goldsmith's Poverty.

Goldsmith had to sell his "Vicar of Wakefield," that masterpiece of English fiction, for a comparatively small sum in order to pay his rent. Want often pinched him to the core.

Juries.

Formerly a jury in England who could not agree were sent to prison, and during Queen Elizabeth's reign a banquet was usually given to the jury by the successful litigant.

The firm of Kimport, Foreman & Co. is scheduled to go out of business on Nov. 7. Sometimes good really comes out of a failure.

It's downright funny to hear the "Democratic Watchman" fume and rave because George Yarnell hasn't been voting the Democratic ticket all his life. Ever hear of Meek voting the Republican ticket? Ever expect to?

The Democratic bosses put up Noll and Grove for County Commissioners. They feel sure that Noll can be elected, but are afraid Grove can't be. Which explains the quiet effort to trade Grove for votes for Lee. Are you on, Grove?

If Jim Furst is elected District Attorney he will be qualified to represent Centre County in the Supreme Court. If Paul Fortney is elected it will be necessary to employ a real lawyer to handle all Supreme Court cases. And Jones will pay the freight. Better save the "freight" by electing Furst.

If Dave Foreman is elected Prothonotary he can make Arthur Kimport his deputy. If re-elected he can re-appoint Arthur. By that time Arthur can again come out for Prothonotary, and if elected he can appoint Dave his deputy. One way to disarrange this nice little program is to elect Harry Diehl Prothonotary.

When County Chairman Kimport sent Paul Fortney down to Harrisburg as his proxy he instructed him to vote with the regular Democrats and against the Keystone Democrats in the State Committee. A few months later Kimport went down to Harrisburg and voted the other way. A case of the local bosses playing both ends to fool the people at home and keep in with the bosses at Harrisburg.

The several Democratic candidates who are so indignantly denouncing the repairs to the Court House seem to be all-fired willing to hold down chairs in the same Court House for the next four years to come. Down in their boots they are mighty proud of the remodeled Court House. Of course they are. But would'nt it be more manly in them to come right out and say that the work was well and economically done, even if it was done by a Republican Board of Commissioners?

The fellow who now is led astray by a sympathy story may need sympathy in the event an incompetent official is placed in the office of Recorder of Deeds. Recorder Brown, in asking for re-election, is not working the sympathy racket. He doesn't have several thousand dollars in bank and at the same time pretend to be holding the door to keep out the wolf. He is standing up like a man. If he is re-elected there will be no danger of years of litigation because YOUR deed happened to be improperly recorded. When you come to vote for a candidate for Recorder, think how YOUR vote may result in confusion in the recording of YOUR deed.

General Beaver Stands By Commissioners.

We commend to the citizens of Centre County General Beaver's stirring words of indorsement of County Commissioners Woodring, Zimmerman and Dunlap, embodied in his address at the rededication of the Court House on May 19, last. After telling of the meeting at the home of Judge Orvis and the details incident to the decision to repair the Court House, General Beaver said:

"It is fair to the Commissioners of the County to say this, inasmuch as they were extremely anxious to discharge the duty which was incumbent upon them as public officers and yet not to go beyond what might be the wishes of the people in regard to what ought to be done in order to meet the requirements of the business of the County, present and prospective. I want to say right here that I assume my full share of the responsibility for the improvements made by the Commissioners and I intend to stand by them to the last drop."

Another "Centre Democrat" Lie Nailed.

The "Centre Democrat" last week indulged in a bitter attack on Josiah Pritchard, Republican nominee for County Treasurer, making the direct statement that Mr. Pritchard had only resided in Centre County a year or two. The Philipsburg "Daily Journal," published in Mr. Pritchard's home town, on Tuesday nailed the falsehood of the "Centre Democrat." The "Daily Journal" published the following:

"The 'Centre Democrat' of last week published a very erroneous statement concerning Philipsburg's candidate for County Treasurer, Josiah Pritchard, when it deliberately said that that gentleman moved to Philipsburg but a year or two ago from another part of the State.

"Mr. Pritchard was born and raised within two miles of Philipsburg, which has always been his postoffice address. His father almost up to the time of his death was engaged in the grocery business on Spruce Street and identified with the business interests of Philipsburg in various ways. His son, Josiah, the present Burgess, in helping his father was therefore in daily contact with the people of Philipsburg and virtually grew up among them. Fourteen years ago he launched out in his business career in our community, when with his brother and Frank Weber he purchased the old Hoover—Hughes & Co. planing mill which was converted into the livery stable still operated by him.

"The facts alone that he is serving his third year as Burgess and his residence on Pine Street since his marriage seven or eight years ago should prove the fallacy of the reports circulated with evil intent and forever dissolve all doubt as to whether he is a Centre Countian or not."

Gingery Lifts The Lid.

David J. Gingery, who was robbed of the Democratic nomination for Sheriff, publicly brands the Democratic bosses with conspiring against him. "The Republican" knew and said so in advance of the primaries that Gingery was to be cheated out of the nomination. This newspaper repeatedly stated that the Democratic bosses had slated A. B. Lee for Sheriff and that orders had been issued to defeat Gingery at any cost. The Democratic headquarters in Bellefonte were established for the sole purpose of putting through the slate framed up by the bosses. The headquarters were used to knock out Gingery for Sheriff; Schofield for County Treasurer, and Hoffer for Prothonotary. The cheating of these three worthy men out of nominations constituted one of the most brazen and daring acts in the political annals of Pennsylvania. It is a scandal which has cast a blight upon the entire Democratic ticket. Mr. Lee, nominated for Sheriff; Mr. Miller, nominated for County Treasurer, and Mr. Foreman for Prothonotary, as honest men owe it to themselves and to the public to prove that they had no hand in this wholesale robbery. They can do this only by resigning from the Democratic ticket. Have they the manhood to do it?

The surest way to secure a square deal in the Prothonotary's office is to elect Harry Diehl.

If certain candidates on the Democratic ticket are elected public bnsiness will have to wait each day until the stock quotations are received from the bucket-shop. Gamblers in stocks would be dangerous public officials.

The people of Philipsburg honored Josiah Pritchard by electing him Burgess. The people of Centre County will honor him by electing him County Treasurer. He has made good as Burgess and he will make good as County Treasurer.

If you want two County Commissioners who will be serving your interests when their private interests do not conflict, elect Messrs. Noll and Grove. If you want two County Commissioners who will make your interests come first, elect Messrs. Woodring and Zimmerman.

The Democratic bosses slated Noll for County Commissioner so that they might tap his barrel. Lee also has a bank account which looks good to the bosses. One end of the Democratic ticket has all the earmarks of a millionaires club. Should some members of the club be elected one side of the Court House would be given over as a bucket-shop, while the other side would be used as a private branch of Wall Street. People who do not want their county affairs handled by bucket-shop artists may guard against this danger by voting the straight Republican ticket.

A Pleasant Gap Republican writes this office suggesting that we ask Mr. Noll, Democratic candidate for County Commissioner, the following questions: When a boss was needed on the water line, why did Mr. Noll not give the position to a man who had worked hard ever since the line was started." Also: "Ask Mr. Noll if Denver Jack is the best?"

Boiled down to hard facts, the only thing the "Democratic Watchman" has been able to scare up against George Yarnell is that he hasn't been voting the Democratic ticket all his life. This no doubt explains why George is the Republican nominee for Sheriff and why so many Republicans are enthusiastically working to elect him by an overwhelming majority.

Tut tut. The "Centre Democrat" last week went into hysterics because the money for the Court House repairs was secured outside of Centre County. In the same issue of the "Centre Democrat" appears an advertisement in which one Daniel A. Grove offers a carload of western cattle at private sale at his farm near Lemont. Let's see. Isn't this the same Daniel A. Grove who is the Democratic nominee for County Commissioner? Mr. Grove, it seems, went outside of Centre County to get cheap cattle to sell. Why didn't he buy his cattle from Centre County farmers and keep the money in Centre County?

Apparently the Democrats are playing Rube for a real "Rueben."

Tribute to George Yarnell.

"The Republican" was no little gratified to receive yesterday a letter from H. W. Orwig, of the well known firm of H. W. Orwig & Son, of Mifflinburg, which is self-explanatory and which follows:

Mifflinburg, Pa., Oct. 18th, 1911.
EDITOR THE REPUBLICAN,
Bellefonte, Pa.

My Dear Sir:—It gives me more than ordinary pleasure to note that the Republicans of Centre County have nominated for Sheriff, Mr. George H. Yarnell. In so doing they have not gone wrong, and my justification for so saying is the fact of a close personal acquaintance with him for a period of fully fourteen years, during which time he was in my employ in the lumbering business, ever finding him true, faithful and the very soul of honesty and uprightness. To this I may add, that while hewing to the line of duty, he evidenced a kindly and sympathetic heart among his associate workmen which characteristic will surely serve him well in the important office of Sheriff, which he is so well qualified to fill.

Hopeful of a good and substantial majority for George H. Yarnell, I am,

Yours very truly,
H. W. ORWIG.

FOREMAN FOREVER?

Census taker seeks Dave Foreman, Democratic candidate for Prothonotary. Finds him in the Court House, of course. There ensues the following:

C. T.—Where were you born?

Dave—In the Court House.

C. T.—Where did you spend you early life?

Dave—In the Court House.

C. T.—Where were you in middle life?

Dave—In the Court House.

C. T.—Where do you expect to be in your old age?

Dave—In the Court House.

C. T.—On the level, now, don't you ever expect to crawl off the public payroll?

Dave—When I let go, the world will have come to an end, Democratic bosses will have turned saints and I'll be swearing by and not at the Bellefonte Republican.

State College H. S. Wins.

The State College High School football eleven soundly trounced the Lock Haven High School, at Lock Haven, last Saturday, the score being 34—0. The scoring for State was done by Holmes, Krumrine, Musser, D. Williams and Grimm. Krumrine kicked four goals. The line-up for the State College team was as follows: Shirk, left end; Bowes, left tackle; Kuhn, Hood and DeHaas, left guard; H. Williams and Homan, centre; Miller, right guard; D. Krumrine, right tackle; Musser, right end: D. Williams and Thomas, quarter-back; Alexander and R. Krumrine, left halfback; Holmes, right halfback; Grimm, fullback.

A vote for Goss and Gramley for County Auditors will be a vote to guarantee careful, honest auditing of the county books for the next four years.

When Dave Gingery was threatening to run independently the Democratic bosses denounced him as a rank traitor. To get Rube Comly to run independently the same Democratic bosses patted him on the back and called him a good fellow. And Rube swallowed it, hook, line and sinker.

Democratic County Chairman Kimport on Tuesday evening filed with the County Commissioners the nomination papers entering Rube Comly as an independent candidate for County Treasurer. Of course, Democratic County Chairman Kimport expects to vote for Rube, the independent, on Nov. 7. So do all the other local Democrats who comforted Rube after his defeat for the Republican nomination and counseled him to run as an independent candidate. These same Democrats were extremely anxious to have Rube stand as an independent candidate, but were just as violently opposed to Dave Gingery running as an independent candidate for Sheriff. The reason is quite plain: Rube happened to be a Republican and Dave happened to be a Democrat. See the point, Rube? The Democrats now urging you on are laughing at you up their sleeve.

CONTEST'S BEST OFFER.

ONE CLUB EASY.

It will be an easy matter for any contestant to secure one club, but one should not satisfy. The more clubs you get the larger will be your reserve vote and that is what is wanted—a big reserve for the close of the contest. You know it is better to have plenty of votes and not need them, than it is to need them and not have them at the finish.

Either old or new subscriptions will count in this offer and subscriptions for a longer period than a year will help considerably. For instance: A three year subscription will be the same as three one-year subscriptions, and one for ten years will complete a club in itself and if it be new will mean exactly 300,000 votes for the contestant securing it.

LONG SUBSCRIPTIONS VALUABLE.

Why not start out with a ten year subscription as your object and keep pegging away until you get it. Incidentally you will pick up a number of subscriptions for a less period and before you realize it you will have a club. Now is the time to get all those who have promised you their subscriptions for it is now or never. You should get all your friends who have been helping you to come to your aid now and help you when you need it most. See as many people as you can and explain just what a subscription will count for you now. They are sure to help and some of those who have already given you a subscription will pay for several years more if you will only take the trouble to ask them. Don't let any grass grow under you feet or you will be too late.

This is the time you should work the hardest for long subscriptions, as they count the most now and they are just as easy to get as those for a period of one year. Make the effort anyway and you will be surprised at the easy manner in which you secured the long term subscription.

The Daily Newspaper.

What other educative force that any man can bring into his home can compare with the daily newspaper? In making choice of newspapers the local newspaper should always be preferred for local news. In the wider general field The Philadelphia Record is a general favorite; because it is clean; because it is accurate; because it is impartial; because it is in no sense yellow. These are the peculiarities and superiorities which have made it the most widely circulated of Pennsylvania daily morning newspapers.

Germs Spread in Skin

Eczema, Psoriasis and other skin troubles are caused by myriads of germs at work in the skin. Unless these germs are promptly destroyed they rapidly multiply, gnawing their way deep into the sensitive tissue. This is what causes that awful itch, and what seemed a mere rash may grow worse and develop into a loathsome and torturing skin disease with its years of misery.

Don't take any chances! Destroy the germs at the beginning of the trouble with that soothing and cleansing wash, the D. D. D. Prescription for Eczema. A 25c bottle will prove this to you.

We have had experience with many remedies for skin trouble but have never seen such remarkable cures as those from D. D. D. Prescription. Instant relief from the very first application.

We are so confident that D. D. D. will reach your case that it will cost you nothing if the very first full size bottle fails to make good every claim.

If you have skin trouble of any kind we certainly advise you to drop in and investigate the merits of D. D. D. anyway. We know that D. D. D. will help you.

An item that missed our note book last week was mention of the substantial brick gutter laid recently in front of the Kline block at the corner of Main and Walnut streets. This particular place has always been the gathering spot for a large amount of dirt from the street, and in the spring and wet seasons rarely dried up and was a menace to health. Mr. Kline frequently hauled the sediment away but it soon filled up again, and now he has sought to remedy the nuisance by the laying of the gutter and thus preventing horses tied there from further tramping the mire.

The initial number of the Citizens' Entertainment Association Course in the Christian Chapel last Thursday evening was a decided success in every way and the audience was more than pleased with the excellent musical program. The house was filled and those who are capable of passing a just criticism proclaim it to be the best musical entertainment that has ever been presented to the citizens of Howard. The "Musical Favorites," four in number are more than favorites in the opinion of those who heard them. They are artists in their line and every number on the program was presented with a masterly skill. The management is highly pleased with the signal success of the first entertainment and feel confident that the succeeding ones will be equally as good.

Scotia.

Mr. Shuey and a lady friend from State College were Sunday visitors at the William Stine home.

Misses Minnie Harding and Eva Lykens, of Bellefonte, came up on Saturday for their share of chestnuts and returning home on Monday evening with enough of the luscious nuts for the filling for their Christmas turkey. Come again girls, you are always welcome.

Harry Dorman, of Waddle, was seen wandering down the new tram road on Sunday, headed toward the subway that has just been completed by the P. R. R. for the Huyett-McNitt Lumber Company. Harry is one of the truckers on the log train and he wanted to be sure everything was right. Or maybe he wanted a good place to hide after Nov. 7, for he is a candidate for constable on the Democratic ticket.

The many friends and neighbors here of Mrs. Robert Reeder were shocked on Friday morning last to receive a message that she had died that morning at Barnesboro. At one time they resided at Scotia. She leaves a family of eight grown children, six sons and two daughters. All the boys but one are railroaders and are getting along splendidly. Mrs. Reeder was a splendid woman and had many warm friends. She was an active and consistent member of the Methodist Episcopal church for many years.

Mr. and Mrs. John Fields, of Tyrone, came out on Monday to help their daughter, Mrs. J. Wallace Lytle pack the household goods and get started to Jersey Shore. They are old residents here, but when work got slack Wallace looked elsewhere and soon had a fine position at Jersey Shore. Now he is moving to that place. Wallace is a skilled machinist and can make good in any shop in the county. When the mines start—that is if they ever do start—Wallace will be one of the men missed the most here.

On Saturday William Lykens, the mighty hunter of this place, was taking his after-dinner siesta when he was awakened by a loud crash as if the house was falling down. Jumping up and rubbing his eyes he was surprised to see a pheasant sitting on the back of a chair in the room and looking at him as if to say "How'dy, old man, I'm not afraid of you. You have shot at me many times in the last four years and as it is now the season I thought I'd come and let you know I was still in the game and expect to come under the wire a winner, as usual. But I'm sorry, old man, I had to break the window to come in." Now William is swearing vengeance on that particular bird and says that he will lash him to the mast before the sun goes down the first day of the season if his old trusty doesn't go back on him, for he will allow neither man nor beast to parade before him with a chip on the shoulder and a saucy grin on the face.

One evening recently a group of young folks, piloted by William Burnside and Andy McNitt, started over the barrens to a party. William was a bit doubtful at the start as to the road, but Andy said that he was a lumberman and knew all about the woods. He said that he wasn't a bit afraid of becoming lost, for all the trees leaned toward the East and that all the moss grew on the north side of the trees. They reached their destination all right by walking a part of the way. In driving over a log in the road they had their first mishap, breaking their carriage. They were compelled to leave the carriage by the wayside and hike it boy scout fashion. A little behind time, but in the best of humor, they arrived all right and soon were enjoying themselves and forgetting all about their misfortune of the early evening. After partaking of a good supper at midnight and borrowing a heavy wagon from their hostess, they started on the last lap of the journey, but alas, the trees didn't lean and that night the moss wasn't growing. After driving through the woods, at times on the road and more often where there was no road, about 5 o'clock in the morning William saw a clear spot and said that if they were anywhere near Scotia the spot must be the mud dam. At that, William was sure they were miles and miles from home. A few minutes later he saw a house and telling the party to wait said he would arouse the occupants and inquire where they were at. Just then the whistle blew, for Superintendent Harry Valentine had become uneasy about them and going to the boiler house had the fireman sound the whistle. The funny part about it was that the house William had seen and to which he was going to awaken the occupants, proved to be his own, a house in which he has been living for five years. All in the party cautioned one another not to tell a word about the incident, but such things will come out.

STOPS ALL RAFFLING

Burgess Bower Issues Order Against Chancing Off Turkeys.

Just along about this time of the year the bracing evening air is given an extra twinge by the passing of the word that a Thanksgiving turkey is to be raffled off in so-and-so's barn. It takes but little effort to have the word passed along. The raffling match, with a turkey as a prize, needs no full-page advertisement to draw a crowd. The cool fall evenings announce the approach of the raffling season and everybody is correspondingly happy.

All of which would have sounded very well last year, but this year things are different. The turkey raffle has been placed under the ban—that is, so far as Bellefonte borough is concerned. Burgess Bower has taken the matter in hand and issued an order prohibiting all raffling for turkeys and other prizes. So now if you want a Thanksgiving turkey you must buy it outright, borrow it from your neighbor or else go outside the borough limits to do your raffling. If the sports who conduct the turkey raffles have any doubt in regard to all this, let them read the following notice, issued yesterday by Burgess Bower:

Whereas, in previous years it has been the custom of sundry citizens of the Borough of Bellefonte to conduct raffling matches for turkeys and other valuable articles in violation of the laws of the Commonwealth and the ordinance of the Borough of Bellefonte:

And Whereas, considerable complaint has been made relative to the conducting of the said raffling matches:

Now, Then, know all men that from and after this date all persons conducting raffling matches for any valuable article within the limits of the Borough of Bellefonte will be prosecuted in accordance with the laws of the Commonwealth and the ordinance of the said Borough.

In Witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and attached the seal of the Borough this 17th day of October, A. D. 1911.

JOHN J. BOWER,
Chief Burgess.

Wedding at Pine Glenn.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized in the Methodist Episcopal church at Pine Glenn on Thursday, October 12th when Miss Iva M. Askey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Askey, became the bride of Webster Burkey, of Conemaugh. The bridal party went from the bride's home to the church in automobiles. Promptly at 2 o'clock the happy young couple proceeded up the aisle to the strains of the wedding march as beautifully played by Miss Pearl Knepp, of Clearfield. The wedding ceremony was performed by Rev. W. B. Cook, Jr., pastor of the M. E. church. The only attendants were the ushers, who were Guy Askey, of Philipsburg, and Clair Lewis, of Pine Glenn. Following the ceremony a few of the relatives and intimate friends of the young couple accompanied them to the Askey home, where a delicious wedding supper was served. Mr. and Mrs. Burkey later departed on their honeymoon trip, which included a visit to Lock Haven, Philadelphia, Atlantic City, Buffalo, Niagara Falls and Austin. They will be at home in Conemaugh after October 20. The bride is a former Centre County school teacher, but for some time past she has held a responsible position with the Pacific Mutual Life Insurance Company, in Johnstown. Mr. Burkey is employed as a fireman on the Pennsylvania railroad. The young couple were the recipients of hearty congratulations and numerous and handsome wedding gifts. Their many friends wish them much joy and happiness in their married life.

CONFIRMED PROOF

Residents of Bellefonte Cannot Doubt What Has Been Twice Proved.

In gratitude for complete relief from aches and pains of bad backs—from distressing kidney ills—thousands have publicly recommended Doan's Kidney Pills. Residents of Bellefonte, who so testified years ago, now say their cures were permanent. This testimony doubly proves the worth of Doan's Kidney Pills to Bellefonte kidney sufferers.

Mrs. James Rine, 239 W. High St., Bellefonte, Pa., says: "Some years ago I procured Doan's Kidney Pills at Green's Pharmacy Co., and their use cured me of kidney complaint and backache that had caused me no end of suffering. At that time I told of my experience in a public statement and I now take pleasure in confirming that testimonial. The relief Doan's Kidney Pills gave me has been permanent."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Many Ways for Wearing Sash.

If a sash is required as the feature of a gown, the girl wearer has an endless choice as to variety and style. Here are only a few of the sash notions that are worn.

Have you a piece of old brocade? Bind it with satin ribbon at each side; fold it round the waist, let it fall in two ends of slightly unequal length half way down the skirt, and ornamented by a bow of the brocade only, placed lengthwise across the centre of the back. Lace may be substituted for the brocade. Or contrarywise, choose a plain material, and bind it with flowered or striped ribbon; shape the girdle Swiss fashion in front, and narrow toward the back, giving it there a rosette formed of petals of the ribbon. Two ends fall from this, one being above and considerably shorter than the other.

Ribbon may be draped round the waist and finished at each end by a buckle, long ends of the ribbon falling from each buckle. Or the place of the buckles may be taken by rosettes in the case of a short belt of satin or crepe de Chine, the two falling ends being gathered into tassels or beaded glands. Crepe de Chine is used also over a Swiss corsels of embroidery, the crepe being loosely gathered round and tied.

Curious bows and finishes are affected, the butterfly and the windmill being favorites, as well as the rosette. Sometimes a fan-like effect is produced, loops of ribbon being arranged for an evening frock round a little cluster of button roses, from which fall, widening toward the edge, a single streamer of satin with a deep flowered end. Another sash has its single end of striped taffeta bound with a deep border of satin, the waist bow being composed of two fan fluted ends, with a buckle in the centre.

Quite a number of sashes have contrasting edges, while others again are finished by fringes and tassels.

Remarries First Wife.

J. S. Horman, a resident of Fullerton, Nebraska, remarried his first wife on the fifty-third anniversary of their first wedding day after having been married to two other women.

After living together for fifteen years, Horman and the woman he has just remarried were divorced. Horman then married Mrs. Betsy Townsend, of Fullerton, with whom he lived for twenty-five years. She died fifteen years ago, and ten years ago he married Mrs. Margaret Houser, who died recently.

Recently Horman wrote his first wife and two weeks ago she came to see him. She responded to his advances and promised to remarry him. They are living at the home where they began housekeeping.

Crops Below Average.

Bradstreet's Report says: The favorable turn to the weather in the late summer and early fall favored the late maturing crops, hence a slight improvement was to have been expected. The Department of Agriculture as of October 1 showed that the condition of late crops was only 13 per cent. below the average, as against 15 per cent. on September 1. Cotton and flax are exceptions to the very general tendency toward a decrease in yields this year as compared with last. All the cereals fell off, oats leading and winter wheat showing the smallest decrease. Cereals as a whole decreased 13 per cent. from last year. Hay and potatoes decreased 23 per cent., tobacco 27 per cent. and rice 8 per cent. The south as a section has the best crop yield, but this advantage is modified by lower prices. The Department of Agriculture shows that despite short yields the prices of eighteen out of twenty-seven leading farm products were lower in early harvest time this year than last.

WITHOUT RESPECT

But With Respect It Was a Different Matter

By F. A. MITCHEL

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

There is a house still standing in South Carolina, one of those old fashioned but stately manors, that is more than 150 years old. The woodwork above its cornices, its massive chimneys, its fluted pillars extending from the porch to the roof, smack of aristocratic persons who dwelt there when the place was new, but who dwell there no longer.

When the Revolution came on Charles Ringold, then lord of the manor, remained loyal to the king, but his children, all of whom were grown, chose the patriot side. His two sons were with General Marion, the "Swamp Fox." His only daughter, Margaret, remained at home with her father, though her heart was with her brothers in the continental service.

One evening during that troublous period Margaret, looking out of a window, saw a man in a scarlet coat riding toward the house. Going out on to the porch, she stood there between two of the great white pillars waiting for him. When he drew rein before her and doffed his hat politely she saw that he was what a woman would naturally admire, a gentleman, a soldier and handsome. He came of the same aristocratic English stock from which she herself had sprung.

"May I ask," he said, "are you loyal subjects of the king here, or are you rebels?"

"My father is for the king" was the reply.

"And you?"

"It doesn't matter where my sympathy lies, for I am a woman, but were I a man I would now be fighting for the patriot cause."

"May I see your father?"

"Certainly."

The officer dismounted. The girl called a negro servant to hold his horse, then showed the man into the library, where her father was reading, and left the two together. Captain Arbuckle, one of Colonel Tarleton's officers, had been sent out by his chief to make inquiries among such Tories as he could find in the neighborhood as to where the "Swamp Fox" was lurking. He asked Mr. Ringold for information, but the latter frankly told him that though he was loyal to the British cause he had two sons in Marion's corps and begged to be excused from replying to his questions. But since darkness was coming on he offered the captain entertainment for the night.

Arbuckle accepted the invitation, not for the entertainment, but that he might pass an evening in company with Margaret, whose stately figure, comely face and aristocratic bearing had made a profound impression upon him. Women to young English bloods of that day were considered legitimate game, and Arbuckle vowed within himself that before he parted with the girl for the night he would take at least one kiss.

He kept his resolution, though he no more than kept it, for he got but one kiss. He left a crimson spot where his lips touched Margaret's cheek and fire in her eye. Rising, she swept out of the room, leaving him discomfited. He had not expected such a rebuff from a woman dwelling in this wild country, so far from old England. He was in doubt whether to regret his act or to make an excuse to remain, with a view to a further effort. But for the present there was nothing to do but go to bed.

In the morning he breakfasted with Mr. Ringold, and when the meal was finished, feeling obliged to return to duty, he ordered his horse. The negro who brought it handed him a note from Margaret, in which she told him that a champion demanded satisfaction for the insult he had offered her the evening before. Captain Arbuckle was astonished. He had played the same game many a time at home, with no serious consequences, to meet with a challenge to mortal combat on a like provocation in the wilds of America.

But for one thing the officer would have offered a humble apology. That was the champion. A spirit of rivalry took possession of him. Who was this man who was to stand in defense of the woman who had so impressed him? Was he a lover, a brother or a friend? In any event, could he, an Englishman—the proudest race on earth—apologize for taking a liberty with one born in a land recently acquired from savages?

"Tell your mistress," he said to the negro, "that I will communicate with her as soon as my duties as a soldier will permit."

On his return to camp Arbuckle found that the command had got wind of the "Swamp Fox" and had gone in chase of him. Tarleton had left an order for the captain to remain in the camp in command of a small guard left there till the expedition returned. This left him an opportunity to take care of the matter he had in hand. He wrote Margaret that since he had learned that she had a champion the fight must come off before any apology could be made. He was impatient to throw himself at her feet to implore her pardon; therefore he desired the affair should be settled as soon as possible. Besides, he was now free from any duty that would interfere with its settlement. Would she ask her champion to name an early date, place, weapons and other details?

A reply came that she felt a delicacy in the identity of the man who was to defend her being known; therefore she stipulated that he should fight masked. The time would be that evening at sunset, in a clearing back of her father's house, the weapons to be cavalry swords. There were to be no seconds. Her slave, Jim, who bore her messages, would be present as a witness.

To the masking Arbuckle declined to assent unless assured that her champion was not a blood relative, and when thus assured he agreed to be on hand at the appointed hour.

He found his enemy waiting for him. The man was tall and slender, being dressed in citizen's costume of the day, a broad tailed cutaway coat and breeches, buff waistcoat, white stockings, large shoe buckles and a powdered peruke. His mask was of black velvet, with lace at and below his mouth.

Jim, the colored slave, stood near with a saber under an arm and a small box containing articles to stop the flow of blood in the other. He handed Arbuckle a saber, and the latter advanced to the spot where his enemy was standing. But before putting himself in a posture for defense he said to Jim:

"In case I am denied an opportunity to crave your mistress' pardon by being killed in this fight I desire you to assure her that had I lived I would have done so.

"I'll do dat, sah," said Jim, "fo' I reckon yo' gwine fo' to get killed. De man wid de udder sword mighty fine fencer. He killed"—

A suppressed exclamation of dissatisfaction from the champion stopped this attempt to frighten the captain, and the principals in the affair, advancing toward each other, began to fence. Notwithstanding Jim's encomiums the unknown at once proved himself no match for his opponent. Arbuckle, perceiving this, stood strictly on the defensive, not desiring that blood should be spilled in such a cause.

He was beginning to be amused at the bungling thrusts and parries made by his opponent when an accident happened at an unlucky moment. Just as the masked man was making one of his awkward thrusts Arbuckle's foot caught in a creeping vine, and he fell forward on the point of his adversary's sword, which, entering his right side just below the arm pit, inflicted a flesh wound.

A cry came from the champion. Not a masculine cry; it was like a woman's shriek. Throwing away his saber, he stooped and lifted his enemy in his arms. Arbuckle, more interested in the champion's identity than his wound, pulled off the mask and exposed the features of Margaret Ringold.

The two looked at each other for a few moments without speaking; then Arbuckle, seizing Margaret's hand, kissed it respectfully, exclaiming:

"Forgive me!"

Meanwhile Jim was hurrying forward, opening the box of materials for stanching blood. Arbuckle assured Margaret that his wound was of no importance, threw off his coat, opened his waistcoat and exposed his shirt saturated with blood. Margaret tremblingly applied lint and wound a bandage to hold it in its place. Then she told Jim to go for assistance and bring a conveyance to take the wounded man to the house. But Arbuckle demurred.

"The affair must be kept secret," he said, "because I am ashamed of my part in requiring a woman to protect herself against me, and, as for being carried about with such a pin prick as this, my comrades would despise me. Go to your home, Miss Ringold. You have vanquished me in more ways than one. Henceforth I am your champion whenever you choose to have me by accepting my services. I will now ride to camp, but ask that at the first opportunity I may be permitted to pay my duty to you."

Margaret turned and walked away, but she heard footsteps behind her and felt her hand clasped. It was Arbuckle.

"Tell me before we part," he said, "am I forgiven?"

She made no reply except with her eyes, but the man was satisfied. He watched her, attended by Jim, till she reached the house, when she turned and, putting her fingers to her lips, threw him what she had fought him for taking disrespectfully.

The "Swamp Fox" kept Tarleton and his men busy for some time, during which Arbuckle did not appear at the Ringold manor. Then he was taken ill. From a hospital he sent word to Margaret that as soon as he had recovered he would see her and make all possible amends for his treatment of her. But he was obliged to wait till the war had ended before being able to visit her. When he came he asked to see her father, saying that he had called on a matter of vital importance to himself. He asked to be permitted to pay his addresses to his daughter. The old Tory was much pleased at the request, though he felt that it would separate him from his child and, having granted it, informed Margaret that Arbuckle had come and had asked for her hand.

There was a great contrast between this and the first meeting Margaret had with Captain Arbuckle, which gave a peculiar zest to the latter. The couple were married before Captain Arbuckle returned with the British forces in America to England. There the South Carolinian was welcomed by her husband's relatives, and she at once assumed a prominent position in society. But she always maintained that had not the colonies won their independence she would not have left her American home.

TABLET TO WASHINGTON

D. A. R. Unveil Marble Memorial at Colonial Falls Church.

In the picturesque village of Falls Church, Va., on the historic Leesburg pike, nine miles from Washington, a marble tablet placed upon the outer wall of the Colonial Falls Church edifice in honor of George Washington was unveiled recently by the Daughters of the American Revolution.

While Christ Church in Alexandria was most frequently visited by General Washington, the Falls Church parish was one in which he was deeply interested. For twenty-two years he served as warden and vestryman at Falls Church.

The edifice was built in 1734 with brick brought from England. For many years it was neglected, but, because of its historic associations with the "Father of His Country," it was finally restored by the Virginia Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution. Many illustrious names appear upon the church record.

How to Stain Wood.

The interesting experiment of dyeing the wood in living trees, has been successfully carried out by making a fine groove around the trunk deep enough to expose the wood just inside the bark.

A string having a diameter slightly greater than the groove is wound around the trunk completely filling the grove and thus protecting the wood from the action of the air.

If now the ends of the string dip into a solution of coloring matter, the latter is renewed until the wood is dyed to the desired intensity. Observations are made from time to time by boring small holes into the tree.

The length of time necessary to dye the wood depends upon the species of tree, the temperature and the season of the year. The best results are obtained just below before the leaves fall in the Autumn. The absorption of the coloring matter is selective; that is to say, all coloring matter is not absorbed by every tree, and in general decided preference is shown for the colored extracts of other trees.

The wood is not stained uniformly, and the mottled effects are very beautiful. The color in the heart of the tree is not perceptibly changed.

Kerosene With Soap.

The use of kerosene with soap for washing has been so frequently recommended that doubtless all are familiar with the process, but here is a way which is far superior: take one box of concentrated lye and 5 cents worth of salts of tartar, dry ammonia and borax. Place lye and ammonia in a stone jar, pour one quart of boiling water over it, taking care not to inhale the fumes. When dissolved add salts of tartar and borax, and when this is dissolved add seven quarts of cold water and bottle for use. Use a cupful of this fluid in a boiler of water and put the clothes in cold. Boil 20 minutes, after clothes begin to boil; rinse thoroughly and hang out. It is better to soak the clothes in cold water to which has been added a little of the fluid, but this is not imperative. The clothes look beautifully white and clear. Be careful to keep this preparation out of the way of the children and label bottle.

Wonderful Praise Accorded Peruna the Household Remedy

Mrs. Maria Goertz, Orienta, Oklahoma, writes:

"My husband, children and myself have used your medicines, and we always keep them in the house in case of necessity. I was restored to health by this medicine, and Dr. Hartman's invaluable advice and books. People ask about me from different places, and are surprised that I can do all of my housework alone, and that I was cured by the doctor of chronic catarrh. My husband was cured of asthma, my daughter of earache and catarrh of the stomach, and my son of catarrh of the throat. When I was sick I weighed 100 pounds; now I weigh 140.

"I have regained my health again, and I cannot thank you enough for your advice. May God give you a long life and bless your work."

Proposed amendments to the Constitution submitted to the citizens of this Commonwealth for their approval or rejection, by the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, and published by order of the Secretary of the Commonwealth, in pursuance of Article XVIII of the Constitution.

Number One.

A JOINT RESOLUTION

Proposing an amendment to the Constitution of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, so as to consolidate the courts of common pleas of Allegheny County.

Section 1. Be it resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, That the following amendment to the Constitution of Pennsylvania be, and the same is hereby, proposed, in accordance with the eighteenth article thereof:—

That section six of article five be amended, by striking out the said section, and inserting in place thereof the following:

Section 6. In the county of Philadelphia all the jurisdiction and powers now vested in the district courts and courts of common pleas, subject to such changes as may be made by this Constitution or by law, shall be in Philadelphia vested in five distinct and separate courts of equal and co-ordinate jurisdiction, composed of three judges each. The said courts in Philadelphia shall be designated respectively as the court of common pleas number one, number two, number three, number four, and number five, but the number of said courts may be by law increased, from time to time, and shall be in like manner designated by successive numbers. The number of judges in any of said courts, or in any county where the establishment of an additional court may be authorized by law, may be increased, from time to time, and whenever such increase shall amount in the whole to three, such three judges shall compose a distinct and separate court as aforesaid, which shall be numbered as aforesaid. In Philadelphia all suits shall be instituted in the said courts of common pleas without designating the number of the said court, and the several courts shall distribute and apportion the business among them in such manner as shall be provided by rules of court, and each court, to which any suit shall be thus assigned, shall have exclusive jurisdiction thereof, subject to change of venue, as shall be provided by law.

In the county of Allegheny all the jurisdiction and powers now vested in the several numbered courts of common pleas shall be vested in one court of common pleas, composed of all the judges in commission in said courts. Such jurisdiction and powers shall extend to all proceedings at law and in equity which shall have been instituted in the several numbered courts, and shall be subject to such changes as may be made by law, and subject to change of venue as provided by law. The president judge of said court shall be selected as provided by law. The number of judges in said court may be by law increased from time to time. This amendment shall take effect on the first day of January succeeding its adoption.

Mr. Cooke's appointment is not only a flattering compliment to him but is the best kind of evidence that his services have proved valuable to his firm. We extend our hearty congratulations.

The victorious Bellefonte Academy football eleven, which has scored thus far in three games 46 points to nothing for their opponents, will try this coming Saturday to defeat the strongest team in Central Pennsylvania. Dickinson Seminary, of Williamsport, will be here. They are a fast and clever lot of players and are coming here to redeem the 6—3 defeat they suffered last year in Williamsport at the hands of the Academy. Go and see tne game. It means about one hour off from business. Your presence will be an inspiration to the Academy boys. You will witness a fine exhibition of the new style of football plays which have been given the locals by Coach Weller, of the Academy, and Harry Weaver, of State College. Game called at 3 p. m. Admission 25 cents.

Harvey Tressler and Harry Barner, two young boys, were arrested on Saturday night charged with robbing Gillen's grocery store on Tuesday evening of last week. The boys were given a hearing before Squire Heary D. Brown and confessed. Gillen's store was robbed of $5.85. The boys said that they had "freighted" it to Pittsburg on the day after the robbery and had a good time in the "Smoky City." They were arrested on their return home. It is supposed that the petty thieving that has been going on in Bellefonte for some time past has been the work of a crowd of boys. Quite a few refrigerators have been robbed. One was at the Mrs. E. M. Blanchard home, on Linn Street. The thieves took a large roast of meat, which they later cooked and had a feast.

State College defeated the strong Cornell football eleven at Cornell, on Saturday, the score being 5-0. On Saturday night the students at State College celebrated the victory in good old-fashioned style. On Saturday of next week State plays the University of Penna., at Philadelphia. The Bellefonte Academy last Saturday cleaned up the supposedly invincible Indiana Normal eleven, 12—0. The Academy students had arranged to hold a monster bonfire in the Court House diamond on Monday night, but it was feared that the intense heat would injure the recently built paved street and Council, which was in session, passed an ordinance prohibiting building of fires in the streets. The Academy boys did not allow this to dampen their ardor and in no time at all they had the gigantic pile of boxes and barrels removed to Hughes field and there they had their fire and gave vent to their enthusiasm to their heart's content. It seemed that Saturday was a day for victories for home teams all along the line. The Bellefonte High School boys also captured a fine victory over the Lock Haven Reserves, defeating the visitors 21-0.

TO PAVE HIGH STREET

Work to Start at Once on Spring Creek Bridge—New Lighting System.

Bellefonte Council, at its regular meeting on Monday night, ordered improvements to West High Street, between "The Republican" office and the Spring creek bridge, which will add greatly to the appearance of the lower section of town. It was decided to proceed at once with the work of paving the street with vitrified brick from curb to curb, and also to build concrete curbing on both sides of the street. It is also proposed erecting street lamps similar to those recently placed in the Court House diamond, doing away with the old arc lights. The abutting property owners will pay the cost of the curbing and two-thirds of the cost of the paving.

As a part of the general plan of improvements the work of repairing the Spring creek bridge by building a new superstructure will be begun at once and rushed through to early completion. The new superstructure will have a concrete floor, the old centre overhead span will be eliminated and the steel framework will rest upon girders extending from one side of the creek to the other.

The proposed improvements to the street between "The Republican" office and the bridge will prove to be the best advertisement possible for Bellefonte, to say nothing of filling a long-felt want. This section of the town meets the eye of the visitor immediately upon his arrival in Bellefonte. In the past the street has presented anything but an attractive appearance. The street has been poorly lighted, especially in the vicinity of "The Republican" office. It is expected that the new plan of lighting, supplanting the arc lights with a larger number of smaller lamps stationed on either side of the street, will not only improve the appearance of the lower section of town but will make it more desirable in a business way.

Council directed that the sidewalk in front of what was until recently the J. Howard Lingle property on West Linn Street be raised to grade, also that a new crossing be laid across the alley between the Reynolds and Coburn properties, in North Allegheny Street.

Notes were ordered drawn for $3700 and $1000 respectively, the former to renew a note held by Col. W. F. Reynolds and the latter to serve as a part payment to R. B. Taylor for work on the State road. Council directed the Street Committee to investigate the reported need for additional lighting facilities near the E. K. Rhoads and Frank McCoy properties, on West Linn Street.

The recent election by the Undine and Logan fire companies of Jacob S. Knisely, as fire marshal; George Eberhart, as first assistant, and Herbert Auman, as second assistant, was approved.

DALE MUSSER DEAD

Former Bellefonte Boy Succumbs to Typhoid Fever in Philadelphia.

The sad news was received in Bellefonte yesterday of the death earlier in the day of C. Dale Musser, who succumbed to typhoid fever in the Methodist hospital, in Philadelphia. So few of his many friends here were aware of his illness that the news of his death was a shock to the community.

The full name of the deceased was Christian Dale Musser. He was a son of Justice of the Peace and Mrs. W. H. Musser, of Bellefonte. He was born in Milesburg, Penna., February 10, 1879. Moved wiih his parents to Bellefonte in 1894. Signed as apprentice on the Penna. School Ship Saratoga in the Spring of 1895 for a 2-year term, later served as Petty Officer on Morgan Line Steamers between Philadelphia and southern ports until the outbreak of the Spanish war, when he enlisted in the navy and served as seaman on the U. S. Cruiser San Francisco until the end of the war. He later worked as a telephone lineman in Philadelphia, Trenton, St. Louis and various other places. He was married to Miss Elizabeth Quinn, of Philadelphia, July 4, 1905. Three children, Dale, 5½ years, George, 4 years and Elizabeth 3 years survive. He was employed by the Keystone Telephone Co. at Jenkintown, until less than a year ago, when he entered the Fire Insurance and Real Estate office of Edwin Kirk, as a partner in Jenkintown.

Surviving are the parents, one brother, Horace, and one sister, Mrs. John M. Bullock. Funeral services will be held tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock.

Basket Ball Season On.

Lovers of Basket Ball are promised some fast games for the present season. The Y. M. C. A. team, composed M. Walker, B. Walker, and D. Wallace of last year's team; M. Gamble and B. Beezer of the old H. S. team, and Davis of the Tyrone Big 5, is the team that will represent Bellefonte. The team has been practicing for several weeks and if the "Devotees" make an effort to boost the thing along and to make a success of it, there is no doubt but that, with this combination, we will have one of the fastest teams in Central Penna. The first game will be announced later.

William Rhoads, of Pittsburg, who visited with relatives and friends in Bellefonte for several days, returned to his home yesterday. He was accompanied by his mother, Mrs. William Rhoads who will visit in Pittsburg for the next two weeks.
